

Problem statement:

Trying to find a solution for what to eat for dinner can sometimes be a daunting task whether it be what to make at home or finding somewhere to eat.

Details:

Sometimes after a long day or when you ask someone what they want, and they don't know it would be nice to have something that tracks what kind of meals you like. This would be based on what you like to make or where you like to eat from your past preferences. I came upon this issue when always trying to find dinner ideas or asking what someone wants for dinner and they reply with I don't know.
